

Parliament Opens to Deal With Unemployment and Incidentally Tariff Boost

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—The doors of parliament swing open today on the special session convened to tackle the subject of unemployment. Proposals of Premier R. B. Bennett to alleviate the situation are eagerly awaited not only in Canada but in all countries with whom Canada trades, for the general impression is that the tariff will be the chief remedy.

Throughout the general election campaign, Premier Bennett pointed to unemployment as the major issue and promised that if returned to power he would call a special session of parliament and produce measures calculated to cure the condition. These proposals will be indicated in the speech from the throne.

Ottawa, Sept. 9.—Brilliant weather, bright uniforms, booming guns and chiming bells all combined to assist in making the opening of Canada's 17th Parliament a successful occasion. It is an emergency session and unemployment furnishes the theme. From the far corners of Canada the recent by-election members were summoned to consider measures of unemployment relief.

The speech from the throne delivered by Lord Willington, governor-general, was as follows:

Honorable Members of the Senate: Members of the House of Commons: It affords me great satisfaction to be associated with you in the important duties upon which you are about to enter at this first session of the seventeenth parliament of Canada.

The necessity for dealing with exceptional economic conditions with the resultant unemployment has induced me to summon you at an earlier date than would otherwise be necessary. Measures will be submitted for your consideration, including amendments to the customs act and to the customs tariff which is anticipated will do much to meet the unusual conditions which now prevail.

In inviting your careful consideration of the important matters which will engage your attention, I pray that divine providence may guide and bless your deliberations.

Governments, Pools, Banks Arrive at Final Agreement

Edmonton, Sept. 9.—Complete understanding now prevails between the Governments of the three prairie provinces, the Dominion Government, the Wheat Pool officials and the banks in regard to the balance of the 1929 crop undelivered to the banks August 1 and as to the handling of the 1930 crop, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee on Monday, back at his office after a month's combined hotel and business trip East. He also stated that the recent conferences on Wheat Pool matters had been largely the result of misunderstanding, a matter which had been cleared up to the satisfaction of all by means of the round table conferences.

The Premier explained that while he left here about August 1 to enjoy a month's holiday, unforeseen developments the day he arrived at Winnipeg necessitated the paying attention to Wheat Pool business which largely occupied his time for the next two weeks.

Speaking of the balance of the 1929 crop, he said that this whole question was a matter of understanding with the banks and this understanding had been reached at the conferences. The first conference had taken place at Winnipeg between the premiers of the three prairie provinces, Wheat Pool officials and the bank superintendents of the banks. Late conferences were held with bank heads at Toronto.

Dealing with the 1930 crop, the Premier said: "The handling of this crop in which the Provincial governments are inevitably interested for the reason that it is vital that the Pool organization should be financed to carry on to properly handle the balance of the 1929 crop was extensively discussed and the government's part in the negotiations was confined to assisting in reaching a decision."

"Both Pool and governments are anxious that under arrangements there be no further Government guarantees and I think the Pools are to be congratulated on their determination to handle the 1930 crop without Government guarantees even though initial payments appears rather low."

FASCINATING LINKS IN CANADA'S HISTORY

Ottawa, Sept. 6 (Special to The Times).—Original letters of the United Empire Loyalists and the banner of the Nova Scotia Loyalists has recently been acquired by the Dominion Archives and it is a distinct asset to the splendid collection which they have of the early life of the pioneers of Canada.

The letters were all written in 1759 and are by W. Sabatier to Governor Wentworth on the subject of the Memorial; a letter with signatures to the agent in London and a letter of R. J. Unwin, Speaker of the House of Assembly, N.S., regarding the memorial.

The Memorial, itself, is an interesting document and parts of it follow: To the King's Most Excellent Majesty: The Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons of Great Britain in Parliament Assembled.

The memorial of sundry of His Majesty's loyal American subjects on behalf of themselves and others settled in the province of Nova Scotia, who have not hitherto received compensation from the county of government for their losses, either of property, or professions, most humbly sheweth:

"That your memorialists are distressed American loyalists most of whom have borne arms during the late war in support of the British Government and all of them manifested their firm attachment to the crown of Great Britain on a variety of occasions."

"That in consequence of their firm and unflinching adherence to the cause of their sovereigns, they have been forced to relinquish property and professions in the colonies, all of which were amply competent to their support."

The letter goes on to state that some of the men who are urgently in need of assistance were unable to forward their cases in the time limit which was set by the government and made this special appeal for consideration.

They explained that their wants were not unreasonable they "wanted enough to enable them to cultivate lands, restore them and their families to comfortable substance."

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY CROP REPORT

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 6.—With the exception of some late crops, cutting of grain in the middle west is practically completed, the recent change to cool weather affecting harvesting operations little. Light to heavy showers in western Manitoba and Alberta and some snowfall in Alberta delayed threshing early in the week just closed, but activities were quickly resumed, according to the weekly report of the Canadian Pacific Railway's agricultural department.

Wheat cutting is practically one hundred per cent completed and threshing is general, except along lines radiating from Wilkie in northern Saskatchewan. Wheat is approximately 45 per cent threshed; oats 30 per cent; barley 35 per cent; the spring wheat and barley harvest areas where threshing is finished.

From many points in the west crops yields are reported better than was expected early in the summer. In northern districts favorable conditions have brought yields of 35 to 40 bushels. Increasing use of combines and headers is noticeable, one point in Southern Alberta reporting a sale of 75 combines.

Little likelihood of material shortage in winter food is due to the good stand of coarse grains, generally better than last year, aside from a few sections struck by extreme drought. Several points in the west, says the report, will market considerable grain to supply extra cattle and hogs at a number of points.

No frost is reported in British Columbia where the apple crop continues promising, though early moisture would help the size and color of the fruit. Pontiac district predicts the finest crop of McIntosh Reds ever harvested. The movement of Wealthy apples and stone fruits is now at its peak, with brisk demand. McIntosh Reds will begin to move the third week in September.

NEWSPAPERMAN IS BLAZING AUTO TRAIL ACROSS CANADA

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 4.—Determined to complete a trans-Canada drive from Halifax to Vancouver without using ferry or railroad tracks and yet not leaving Canadian territory, Healy F. Needham, western Canada newspaperman and veteran automobile driver, left here at 11 a.m. today with plans to be in Vancouver Thanksgiving Day. Needham will have some seven or eight hundred miles of virgin forest and wasteland to traverse without the aid of roads of any kind. The highway which Needham will travel ends at Hearst, Ontario, and from there to Kenora he will fight woods, boulders, ravines, streams and swamps, taking his eight-cylinder roadster over what he hopes will be some day fill the missing link of the trans-Canada highway.

The adventurous driver has spent 18 months in the wilderness and is confident that he has blazed a trail through which he can take his car. He will have the assistance on this part of the trip of an experienced woodsman who will join him at Hearst. Supplies of gasoline and oil, spare parts for his car and food have been cached at intervals along his proposed route.

Before departing today Needham drove his car into the waters of the Atlantic ocean here and plans to dip the same wheels in the Pacific early in November.

The project is backed by automobile, tire and oil companies and has taken a long time to organize. The start was made following a radio broadcast by the driver and a send-off by local motorists club and other officials. Needham plans to spend tonight in St. John N.B.

The fifth annual golf tournament of the Victoria Park golf club for the Eastern Alberta championships was played under generally good weather conditions. Sunday morning was cold with a raw, westerly wind, which resulted in the scores in the qualifying flight being higher than would have been the case had conditions been more favorable. The remainder of the tournament was played in an atmosphere ideally suited to the requirements of the golfer.

The entry list carried 80 names, 44 of visitors and 36 of local players. There was strong competition throughout with major awards going to visitors.

SECOND INSTALLMENT

(What has gone before)

Giles Chittenham, distressed over the suicide of his younger half-brother Rodney, returns to Europe from America, where he had made an unhappy marriage. Rodney had killed himself because a notorious woman, Julie Farrow, threw him overboard. He is introduced to Julie Farrow by his friend Lombard, in Switzerland. He resolves to make her fall in love with him, then throw her over as she did Rodney. She tells him she has made a bet with her friend "Bim" Lennox that she can drive her car to the top of the St. Bernard Pass and back. Giles challenges her to take him with her and she accepts. They start out in the face of a gathering snowstorm.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"He must have been unbalanced to take his life as he did."

She shivered a little.

"You don't think then—don't you think it was an accident?"

Chittenham looked steadily at her. "Do you?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"I'm afraid not—but oh, wasn't it dreadful?"

The deep sincerity of her voice surprised him. She almost sounded distressed instead of being utterly heartless and callous about the tragedy as he knew she was.

"It seems rather pitiable," he answered in a hard voice.

She did not answer for a moment or two, then she said with a note of exasperation in her voice.

"It would interest me exceedingly, Mr. Chittenham, to know the real reason why you wanted to come with me."

"I told you. To see if you are really as defiant of Mrs. Grundy as you pretend."

She shook her head.

"That's not the real reason, though yesterday I pretended to believe you. There isn't anything at all dreadful in you and I taking this drive together. I've often done more risky things. We're doing a perfectly harmless and ordinary trip which plenty of other people have done before us. She laughed. "Oh, no, that's not your real reason for wishing to come, I know."

Chittenham sat staring before him with frowning brows. The woman was more than a match for him and he knew it.

"If I told you the real reason you would not believe that either," he said deliberately after a long pause. "All some strange way he felt as if Rodney were close to him, at his elbow, prompting him, whispering the words of that last tragic letter."

"I'd like to think you were making her pay. I believe I could even make you to laugh in Hell, or wherever I shall go, if I knew that you were making her suffer as she's made me suffer."

And he thought of Rodney as a boy—a little fellow in his first Brim suit, shy and a little awkward, trying to feel older than he was—of Rodney—oh, the pictures came crowding fast and thick, leading up to that last picture which he had never seen even in his bitter imagination—Rodney dead!

And it was the fault of this woman who sat beside him, speaking of Rodney with that little note of pretended distress in her voice. He shrank a little from her with a feeling of repulsion. Women were all the same, heartless and selfish.

He felt her eyes upon him. "Tell me the real reason?" she said.

"Do You Believe in Love at First Sight?"

Chittenham turned his gaze from the wet road and looked at her. There was a little flush in her cheeks and her eyes were deep and unfathomable behind their thick dark lashes. She looked so young—hardly more than a girl—and yet Chittenham knew that she had been through the divorce court, and through experience of which no woman need be proud.

"Please tell me!" he said again and now there was a little breathless catch in her voice that seemed to speak of a deep sincerity and interest which she was trying in vain to conceal. Chittenham asked an apparently irrelevant question.

"Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"Love at first sight?" She caught his words up, then broke off to ask almost in a whisper: "Oh—why?"

"Because," said Chittenham deliberately, "that is my real reason."

"You should not say such foolish things," she said sharply.

"I told you you would not believe me," he said calmly.

"I don't understand you," Julie said in a jerky little voice.

Chittenham said no more, and it was she who presently broke the silence.

"I can't understand you, Mr. Chittenham. It's a—joke—I don't think it's quite good taste, and if it's not a joke—I keep remembering what Rodney said of you, that you despised women, that you had never pardoned me for one than for all the rest."

"Even Napoleon met his Waterloo," Chittenham said. He laid a hand over one of hers that held the driving-wheel.

He did not answer; she was not listening. Her thoughts were in a whirl, and she was trying in vain to steady them and to reduce them once more to sane stability.

He had not been serious, of course, or had he? Julie was surprised and a little afraid because she longed desperately to know. Chittenham seemed to read her thoughts for he said quietly:

"Well, what is the verdict?"

"What do you mean?"

"Have you made up your mind as to whether I am in earnest or not?"

"I know you are not."

Chittenham laughed.

"You mean you think I am not, but all the same you hope I am."

"Mr. Chittenham!"

There was anger and amazement in her voice, and her cheeks grew suddenly scarlet.

"I thought you liked plain speaking," Chittenham said calmly. "If I am mistaken I apologise." He glanced at his watch. "We ought to be at Martigny in half an hour unless you have another skid and land us upside down in the ditch."

"We will be there in twenty minutes," said Julie with a little savage intonation, and they were.

Julie brought the car to a standstill with a little spiteful jerk, and passed him, with her head in the air and walked into the cafe.

They faced one another across a small table, and as their eyes met Chittenham said with a smile:

"Don't quarrel with me before we are half-way there! If you go on getting angry at this rate you will skid on the edge of a precipice and that will be an end to both of us."

"I'm not angry, I—oh, well, I suppose I am, but it's your fault. Why did you talk such nonsense?"

"You mean when I told you that I loved you? Has it always been nonsense when men have told you that?"

"You talk as if such a thing were an everyday occurrence—as if I were a horrid kind of woman who went about collecting scalps!"

Suddenly she laughed, and shrugged her shoulders. "After all, it's silly to be angry with you. I ought to know better."

He made no answer, and Julie began to pour out the coffee.

It was a very watery sun that shone upon them when they started away, and great banks of clouds kept drifting up threateningly. The road grew steeper and more difficult once they passed the little huddled village of St. Pierre.

She glanced down into the valley on their left and gave a little startled exclamation. They could see nothing for the clouds which lay spread out everywhere like an enveloping blanket.

"It will make it difficult driving back," said Chittenham. "I know these mountains rather well, and I know just what unkind tricks they can play on the optimistic traveller. I should slow down a little if I were you, Miss Farrow, there is a nasty corner here. It turns very sharply to the left and there is a big drop on one side."

She only just pulled the car round in time, and her face was white.

"Would you like me to drive?" he asked quietly. She recovered herself with an effort.

"I am not tired," she insisted.

"Nor going to faint?" he asked with irony.

"It gave me a shock. I did not expect to find such a dreadful corner."

"I warned you," he reminded her. "I know you did, but you do it in such a way—it only makes me want to defy you. I have never met a man quite like you before."

"In what way am I different?"

Julie hesitated, biting her lip, then she told him.

"One moment you pretend to make love to me, and the next you sneer at me."

"And which do you prefer?"

"To his amazement he saw the tears spring to her eyes.

"Do you imagine that I like either?" she faltered.

Chittenham leaned forward suddenly and kissed the hand nearest to him that rested on the steering-wheel.

"I am conceited enough to think that I could make you like being made love to," he said quietly, and then as she did not answer he asked: "Will you dare me to try?"

"No."

He leaned back in his seat resignedly.

"Then we may as well go on."

It took a moment or two to restart the engine.

The road was steeper and wider. There was very little vegetation on the black sides of the mountains, and what there was was short and stunted, covering way from the black wind that swept down upon them.

As they climbed higher out of the valley the wind grew colder and more cutting.

"You ought to have brought a coat," Julie said once. She was very cold and there was a set, strained look round her mouth. She had not expected the road to be so bad, and once or twice at a particularly bad corner she caught her breath with a little gasping sound.

Chittenham heard her and knew that she was afraid, but he made no comment. It served her right he thought, for being so boastful and confident.

"I won't say another word," Chittenham agreed, but there was a malicious little twinkle in his eyes.

The east wind was like a cutting knife as Julie brought the car to a difficult standstill, and let her hands fall from the wheel.

"I've won so far," she said, and leaned back, closing her eyes with sudden weakness.

Chittenham uncured his long legs and got stiffly out of the car, then he came round to Julie's side and took her hands.

"Come along. We'll get something hot to drink. By God! it's bitterly cold."

He half led, half lifted her into the hotel and put her down on a bench in the narrow hall.

Chittenham ordered some brandy and made Julie drink it.

"Very few people today, sir," the waiter told him. He spoke English very well. "And we shan't get any more by the look of the sky."

"What do you mean?"

"There's snow coming, sir."

Chittenham went to the door and looked out. "It's snowing already," he said.

"Is it?" she laughed. "How funny! What's it coming down in Montreux?"

Chittenham got up and went to stand behind her.

"Now we are really on the top of the world," he said. "Just you and I alone, Julie—I am sure even you have never had an experience like this before."

She shook her head.

"No. And I'm not sure that I want it again."

"Why? You are quite safe."

"I know but—" she laughed nervously. "I believe I'm afraid."

"I thought you were afraid of nothing," Chittenham said. His own pulses were jerking unevenly. "There was something so romantic and strange in the whole situation. He looked at Julie with searching eyes."

The woman for whose sake Rodney had gone to his death! Chittenham pulled himself together with an effort and moved away.

He tried to open the window a little, but such a gust of wind and snow pelled into the room that he had to close it again.

"Don't you think it's any better?" Julie asked anxiously. Chittenham glanced out at the flying blizzard.

"I think it's worse," he said briefly. She turned on him angrily with flashing eyes. Chittenham looked at her silently, and then suddenly, to her utter amazement, she burst into tears.

"Julie—" he made a quick movement towards her, then stopped, shrugging his shoulders. "I don't know what you're crying for," he said sharply.

With a great effort she controlled herself.

"I don't know either," she said. "I've little sobs. It's just nerves, I suppose. This hateful place—"

"It looks as if we shall have to stay the night," Chittenham answered uncompromisingly.

She turned and looked at him, her eyes still wet with tears.

"I suppose you think I'm a fool," she submitted in a hard little voice. (Continued next week)

FALL FASHIONS IN FOOD

(By Barbara B. Brooks)

This is the time of year when fall models appear in the windows of the dress shops. Skirts are longer, or shorter; sleeves fuller or tighter; neck lines, even or uneven; hems, regular or irregular. There are always some changes from the mode of the previous season, yet the clothes themselves keep right on performing the function which has been theirs from earliest times—that of protecting the body from heat or cold. Exactly the same model could be worn winter and summer by adapting the weight of material to the temperature. But why not? Because women crave change and this is perfectly natural. Nature herself relieves the green of the hillside by dotting it with many colored flowers and by delicately shading the pale tints of Spring through the full colors of Summer and the vivid hues of Autumn until, with an eye for sharp contrast, she strips the trees bare and covers them with a mantle of white.

The same basic principles apply to food as to clothing. The primary function of food is to nourish the body—to keep it warm, in perfect condition for growth and development and to furnish the glow of health. People could draw up a chart showing the amounts of protein, carbohydrate, fat, vitamins, and minerals necessary for adequate nutrition, decide on the foods which will furnish them and then keep on eating these same foods day after day, month after month and year after year.

What is the matter with such a plan? It is uninteresting. We want a change of food styles for the same reason that we welcome new colors, new fabrics and original cuts for gowns.

There is a wide range of choice in the food. Fruits and vegetables are shown in beautiful colors and interesting textures. They can be made up very simply or in combinations which will furnish variety and interest.

Fresh tomatoes should be served as they are in market. For slicing or for salads peel the tomatoes and chill thoroughly. Tomato adds greatly to the flavor of many soups, sauces and casserole dishes. We are giving here some recipes for cooked fresh tomatoes.

Baked Tomatoes

Wash the tomatoes and remove a slice from the top. Score the centers of the tomatoes and season with salt, pepper and butter. Lay a slice of onion on top of each tomato. Place in a baking dish with two or three tablespoons of water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until tender.

Tomato Goulash

½ cup salad oil, 2 onions (sliced), 2 green peppers (shredded), 3 ears corn (cut from cob), 8 tomatoes (cut in eighths), salt, pepper. Heat the oil. Add onion and cook until a delicate brown. Add peppers and corn and cook five minutes. Add tomatoes and season and cook until soft.

Scalloped Tomatoes

8 large fresh tomatoes, bread crumbs or corn flake crumbs, butter, grated cheese, salt pepper.

Peel tomatoes and cut into slices. Place alternate layers of tomatoes seasoning, and crumbs in a casserole. Dot each layer with butter. Cover with cheese and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.).

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 8.—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French air voyageurs, pointed their scarlet sesquiplane, the Question Mark, toward Louisville, Ky., today, after completing a one-stop Paris-New York-Dallas flight yesterday.

The travel-weary Frenchmen, who started their historic ocean-spanning flight, at Le Bourget Field, Paris Monday, said they would stop over night at Louisville, continuing Saturday to New York to be in the east for a week-end luncheon engagement with President Hoover.

The flight from New York to Dallas, ended yesterday at 5:20:45 p.m., after 11 hours and 34 minutes in the air, and made the French Atlantic conquerors eligible for a purse of $25,000 offered by Colonel William Easterwood, Dallas millionaire.

Col. Easterwood, in a long distance telephone conversation with Dallas Morning News said he was flying from London to Paris immediately to make arrangements with the French air ministry for presentation of the purse, either in Paris, New York, or Dallas.

PEEVISH ROOSTER ATTACKS CAR

A new menace to peaceful motorists, which is not expected to assume serious or widespread proportions, is reported from London, Ontario. Annoyed at the incessant stream of cars passing along his favorite feeding ground, a game cock belonging to an Adelaide street resident deliberately attacked one of the automobiles, which was driven by William Bailey of Elias street in that city. The rooster was seen to goze at the approaching car, then he ruffled his feathers, in hostile fashion and flew directly at the front of the vehicle. He soared through the air, crashed through the windshield, bumped against the back of the tonneau and came to rest in the lap of one of the passengers. Two of the three occupants of the front seat were injured by glass splinters. Police investigated the accident but were balked when they found the cause of all the trouble slumbering in a stewing kettle. The moral seems to be: Don't underestimate the feathered pedestrian.

Low wheat prices must be expected for some time by the Western farmer, counselled E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in Regina, Monday. He believed that cost of production of wheat must be taken under consideration.

"We are quite satisfied with the showing of the British teams at the Empire Games just concluded at Hamilton, Ont., for we picked up quite a lot of honors, and if I may say so, made a very creditable showing," was the statement of R. T. Britten, in charge of the swimmers who hung up several new marks at the meeting. He thought the Games would be of incalculable value to the Empire as a whole, since they brought all parts of it together at one time and one place.

The maiden voyage of the new Canadian Pacific flagship of the Pacific, the Empress of Japan, from Yokohama to Victoria, was completed in eight days, six hours and 23 minutes, beating the Empress of Canada record for the run, established in 1918, by four hours and thirty minutes. E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the railway company, wired congratulations to Captain E. Aikman, general superintendent of the company's Pacific steamship fleet. Records also fell on the Atlantic when the company's liner Duchess of York travelled between Greenock, Scotland, and Quebec City in 5 days, 17 hours and 29 minutes, even bettering the time hung up by the Duchess of Richmond on her previous trip from Halifax to Quebec, which is a hundred miles shorter.

Speaking at a banquet given by the Saint John Board of Trade to inaugurate the service of the new Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Helen, on the Saint John-Digby route, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the railway, said he thought Canada would respond more quickly than other countries, even wealthier than herself, to measures taken by responsible governments and large industrial organizations to alleviate unemployment. He added that in his opinion the Maritime Provinces were particularly favorably placed in this respect.

The United States, France, Great Britain and Canada were represented at the celebrations which were held at the site of the old village and around the Memorial Church made ever famous by Longfellow's poem of Evangeline.

In the provision of telephone communications in cities of 50,000 and over and in conversations per capita, Canada leads the world, according to statistics recently published. In these cities Canada has 24.2 telephones per 100 inhabitants, against the United States' 21.8. In 1929 Canada made 24.1 conversations per head of population as compared with 23.7 in the United States, her nearest rival.

A total of 18,029,973 telegrams was transmitted and received in Canada in 1929, an increase of 1,172,753 over 1928. There are 360,883 miles of telegraph lines in Canada.

The famous red squadron of the Commercial Airways and three Fokkers of the Western Canada Airways will come down from the north and present some spectacular formation flights.

Arrangements are being made by the general committee at Edmonton to obtain champion special stunters to thrill the crowds. Then you will see some of these pilots in sensational dives, loops, spins and similar stunts.

Load speaker equipment is being installed so that those speaking or making announcements at the grounds will be heard for a mile or more. An aeroplane is also being equipped with loud speaker apparatus prior to its tour of outside towns and districts to spread word of the big show.

The Edmonton air show committee has opened an office in the Recreation building, 101st Street, Edmonton, where reservations for car spaces are being received. From many of the towns and rural sections have come orders for spaces to be held and more are coming in daily. The committee has prepared a carefully considered plan of the car parking areas so that there will be a good view of the events.

No one should miss seeing this show. One of the most spectacular sights in the history of aviation in Western Canada will be the arrival of these big American machines. With throttles wide open, they will roar across the field for turning purposes before making a final landing. There will not be a dull moment the whole afternoon and early evening.

A spectacular high line trail ride about 7,000 feet above sea level from Banff to Lake Louise has just been inspected and found feasible by J. Murray Gibbon and Jim Brewster. It is 27 miles west of Banff over timber line to a ride looking down on the little known glacier-crowned Taylor Lake and following the 7,000-foot contour to the Consolation Lake trail leading to Moraine Lake. It commands magnificent views of the glacial country north of the Canadian Pacific Railway as far as the Bow Lakes and south to Mt. Assiniboine. It is 60 miles long and will probably be used for the annual official camping trip of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies next year.

"I do not believe that the talking films will ever take the place of the legitimate stage. People still appear to be building ordinary theatres," said Lady Diana Manners, famous English society beauty and equally famous as the heroine of "The Miracle" during its New York and Boston productions, who arrived in the West on her first visit to Canada.

The Quebec Festival of French-Canadian Folk Lore and Handicrafts, at which hand artists of the born and bred on the soil of Quebec province, and well-known artists from far and wide rival one another in recovering the spirit of Old France, and old New France and the age-old culture of the Gaelic race, will be held this year October 16-18, according to an announcement made by the Canadian Pacific Railway, organizers of the Festival.

Travelling in two Canadian Pacific special trains, about 250 of the most eminent figures in the British medical world left Montreal for Winnipeg to attend the first convention of the British Medical Association held in Winnipeg. They were preceded by a group of 60 members of the British Tuberculosis Association, who attended a convention of tuberculous specialists at Ninette, Man. before going to Winnipeg.

"In view of the fact that this is the last year in which Canada has a seat on the Council of the League of Nations, I could not resist the request made to me by the Prime Minister to represent the Dominion at Geneva," said Sir Robert Laird Borden, former Prime Minister of Canada, as he sailed for Europe recently aboard "the Empress of Scotland."

Every activity of the Canadian Pacific Railway was stressed this year at the National Exhibition at Toronto, which was the young people's train, and chairman and president of the road. An outstanding feature of the company's exhibit was the model of the new 42,500-ton Empress of Britain, greatest inter-Empire passenger vessel, launched by the Prince of Wales last June and to be in service between Quebec and Great Britain, next year.

More than $100,000,000 will be spent in each of the next three years on power production now under development in Canada. Although there are other plans for important building projects, some will have a more intimate bearing on the industrial development of Canada than those now contemplated by the power industry.

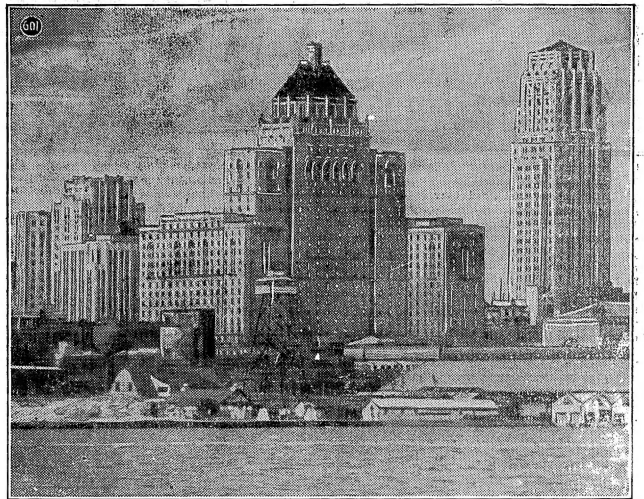

BODY WASTE

Whenever work goes on there is practically always something useless left over in the form of waste or rubbish. When not hurried to secure heat or power, these are left over. After food has been prepared there is always some waste to be disposed of.

Our bodies are constantly at work. Even while we sleep there is some activity, we breathe, our hearts beat, and other functions of our body continue at a low ebb. This results in a continuous formation of waste products, the amount varying according to the food intake and the activity of the body.

The removal of its waste products is necessary if the body is to function properly and be in a state of health. The body is provided with means for the disposal of its waste, and as long as these means of disposal function properly, there is no difficulty. It is when there is some interference with the machinery of elimination that trouble starts. Several organs of the body take part in elimination.

When food is taken into the body, it is digested and assimilated. Food provides the energy for body activities and the heat to keep the body warm. It also provides materials for growth and repair and, in addition, certain substances called vitamins, which are required for the regulation of body functions.

From the food are left indigestible parts which go to make up waste and there are also the waste products of the various organs and tissues of the body. These waste products must all be regularly eliminated by the body, and they are so eliminated when the body is functioning properly.

The lungs get rid of the carbon dioxide gas which is formed in the body and carried to the lungs in the blood stream. The kidneys remove waste materials from the blood and secrete such wastes in solution in the urine. The undigested part of the food is eliminated by the bowel. Through perspiration, the skin eliminates water.

In order to keep the organs of elimination properly operating, it is necessary that a proper selection of foods be made and that the amount used be not in excess of what is required. Water should be used freely, both internally and externally. Rest, exercise and fresh air help to keep all parts of the body working in harmony. A hygienic life keeps the organs of elimination in good condition, and when the organs of elimination are sound the body is helped to keep healthy. Thus health comes through proper living.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ONTARIO FARMERS INTERESTED

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is taking time by the forelock in so far as making preparation for the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, 1932, is concerned. Farmers are being urged by the Department to keep this year's seed in the event of the crop of next year not being up to the high standard of former years. Fall fair judges have been instructed to be on the watch for extra fine quality grain and seed at this year's fall fairs and to send samples to the field husbandry branch at Guelph for examination. Officials of the Department report that already much interest has been stimulated among growers many of whom have announced their intention of preparing for the 1932 exhibition.

OTTAWA EXPECTS PRICE OF BREAD WILL BE LOWER

Ottawa, Sept. 4.—Information relating to the price of bread is still being accumulated by the combines investigation branch. As yet there is no intention to launch a formal investigation under the Combines Investigation act. Senator Gideon D. Robertson, minister of labor, said he looked for a lowering in the price of bread by voluntary action on the part of some of the baking concerns.

Bread prices in 69 Canadian cities have been analyzed by the department. Out of this number the price now is lower in 19 communities than it was in January, 1929, while the price of flour has been lowered in 47 communities.

The Times invites the cooperation of residents of the country districts. Correspondents from districts not now represented in this paper are requested to write in for correspondence paper and particulars.

Famous Husky Wins Prizes

Arthur Beauvais, well-known Indian guide at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec City, owes much of his popularity among visitors to the hostelry to the team of huskies that mush them out on snowed trips in the winter. Chief among his team is his leader, "Jeff," and at the last minute it occurred to Arthur to enter Jeff at the Montreal Kennel Association Show held recently. He took no particular trouble in beautifying him for the occasion and accordingly was gratified to learn that he had taken three first prizes and one special prize. In fact, he would have taken another special prize as the best dog shown, if Beauvais had not taken him away to catch a train. Illustration shows close-up of Jeff with some of his prize ribbons.

THE PALE WESTERN CUTWORM

A Grave Warning to Farmers (By H. G. L. Strange)

The Dominion Entomologists of Lethbridge and Saskatoon, Mr. H. L. Seamans and Mr. K. M. King, have issued a very grave warning to all farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan regarding the great damage to crops that may occur next year because of the cutworm.

The dry May and part of June that has been experienced in most parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan this year has tended enormously to increase this insect pest, and it is expected that unless May and June of 1931 are much wetter than is usually the case, that the greatest and most widespread damage that has ever been experienced will result from cutworms.

Most of Saskatchewan south of Saskatoon, it is expected, will be badly affected, with the worst damage within a hundred mile radius of Regina. In Alberta the damage will probably be very general east of a line from Edmonton to Macleod and as far south as the Lethbridge-Medicine Hat line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The damage to the 1931 crop will depend absolutely upon the way fields are handled this present August and September.

The moth of the cutworm flies across the fields and lays its eggs, starting the first few days of August, reaching its maximum flight about the 20th, and continuing to fly and lay eggs until about the middle of September.

This moth will avoid all land that has had even a very slight crust formed on it by rainfall, but will lay its eggs upon any soil where this crust has been broken, however slightly.

To avoid cutworm damage on a field, therefore, it is necessary that on summer-fallowed fields all work should stop by the first of August or a very few days afterwards. Then a very slight rain will form a crust on these fields, which will render them immune the following year from cutworm damage.

It is most important that no horses, stock or implements or wagons shall be allowed to cross any summer-fallow prepared in this fashion, because wherever the crust is broken by animals or implements there the moth will lay its eggs, and a great deal of damage will be experienced the following year.

On fields in crop, where harvesting operations are conducted before about September 1, then damage the following year is almost certain to be experienced unless these fields are summerfallowed.

It is apparent, therefore, that all fields which are cropped this year, as far as possible, should be summerfallowed in the year 1931, and that in addition all work on summerfallowed fields this year should cease as soon after August 1 as possible, and that nothing should be allowed to walk over or cross these fields.

Mr. H. L. Seamans, Dominion Entomologist stationed at the Lethbridge Laboratory, without hesitation states that it is far better to allow weeds to grow on the summerfallow after August 1 in these affected areas rather than to disturb the crust of the soil and go invite cutworm damage.

HOW TO ELIMINATE SECOND-GRADE CREAM

In this article an attempt is made to describe many of the more common causes of low grade cream and how these causes may be eliminated.

The producer of low grade cream takes from three to five cents per lb. butterfat less for his cream than the producer of special grade cream receives for his.

The reason for various defects that produce low grade cream are set forth below together with the remedy for each cause that if carried out will enable the farmer to produce a higher grade of cream.

Butter Flavor

The most common defect found in low grade cream. There are various types of "Butter Flavor."

Causes: (numerous).
1.—Particles of manure, filth and litter, falling from the cow's udder and flanks into the pail, and unclean hands and clothing of the milker.

2.—Strippers or cows too long in lactation, or using the milk from fresh cows before it is fit for use.

3.—Failure to cool the cream promptly, and to keep it cool.

4.—Separating thin cream may be responsible for this flavor, as the thinner the cream, the higher the percentage solids not fat, and therefore the more quickly will it deteriorate.

Remedy:

1.—Clip hair on udder and flanks twice yearly.
2.—Wipe the udder and flanks with a damp cloth before milking.
3.—Cool promptly and practice sanitation from start to finish.

Weeds, or low, swampy pasture, frequently bring about this flavor.
Thin cream—under 30% fat—sours quickly, and has frequently to be placed in 2nd grade.

And—use only fresh, clean water to flush separator bowl. Do not use water from cistern or supply tank in the house or barn.

Cheesy Flavor

Causes:
Unclean utensils, i.e., improperly washed pails, dirty separator, dirty milking machines, etc.

Remedy:

Wash separator bowl and pails twice daily and where a milking machine is used, wash the rubber tubes twice weekly in summer and once weekly in winter.

Cellar Flavor

Causes:
Holding the cream in a poorly ventilated cellar, or alongside potatoes, decayed roots, and vegetables. Also separating or holding the cream in the root house.

Remedy:

Hold the cream in a clean, bright, well-ventilated room or cellar.

Feed Flavor

Feeds such as turnips, decayed roots or sour silage, musty hay, etc., imparts an objectionable flavor to milk and cream. Be sure to feed the cows only after milking has been completed, and the milk and cream removed from the barn.

Gasoline and Oil Flavor
Where a gas engine is used to operate a milking machine or separator, the engine should be placed in a separate room—so that no fumes will come in contact with the milk or cream.

The operator should exercise care to see that his hands and clothing are free from oil and gas, while he is around the separator. Also do not place cream can near gas engine or barrel, and do not use cream can to draw gasoline, or kerosene from the gas station.

Remember—cream quickly "picks up" flavors and odors from the atmosphere.

Lumpy or Curdy
Causes:
1.—Lumpy cream is mostly found in winter. Improper stirring, allowing cream to freeze, or separating a thin, low testing cream, brings this condition.

Remedy:
Separate cream which tests 35% fat or over. Stir frequently and do not allow cream to become frozen.

Curdy cream is very objectionable, from a buttermaker's viewpoint, and is mostly found in summer. It is caused by separating cream which tests below 35% fat—this thin cream sours quickly, and frequently "turns" curdy.

Remedy:
Separate cream which tests 35% fat or over. Stir thoroughly and keep cool.

Metallic Flavor
Causes:
1.—Milking in galvanized or old rusty pails.

2.—Separating the cream into, or holding it in old lead or honey pails, rusty or galvanized iron pails.

3.—Stirring the cream with a rusty spoon or stirring rod.

4.—Separating thin cream—this sours quickly and attacks the metal of the container.

Remedy:
1.—Use only bright, clean, well tin-lined pails.

2.—Separate cream to give a test of 35% fat or over in summer and 20% fat or over in winter.

3.—Cool the cream promptly and keep it as cold as possible until it is shipped to the creamery.

4.—Ship cream only in rust-free cans.

Musty Flavor
Causes:
1.—This flavor is frequently produced by molds which gain entrance from the atmosphere, i.e., milking in a dusty cow barn or barnyard.

2.—Holding cream in a musty, dingy cellar, or alongside musty fruit or vegetables.

Remedy:
1.—Do not disturb the litter in the stable within one hour prior to milking time.

2.—Hold the cream in a fresh, clean, well-ventilated room or cellar.

Also, cases have come to our attention where water from a cistern in the barn has been used to flush separator bowl. This water becomes stale and musty, and akin to stagnant water found in ponds. Remember—it has washed the barn roof during the rainstorm, then run through rusty pipes and into the cistern, where it may have stood for months. Therefore, use only fresh, clean water from the well to flush separator bowl and to wash dairy utensils.

Stable Flavor
Very objectionable, easily eliminated.

Causes:
1.—Milking in a poorly ventilated stable.

2.—Separating in or holding the cream can in the stable.

3.—Milking with wet hands—dipping the hands into the milk to moisten, then wetting the teats, and allowing the moisture to drop from the surface of the teat and lower parts of the udder in to the pail. (A dirty udder and filthy teats are usually "clean" in appearance after the cow has been milked, and the filth, dirt and "litter" have been "allowed" to fall, or "unconsciously" but surely "scraped" into the milk, due to the unsanitary manner in which many milkers extract milk from the cow).

Remedy:
1.—See that the stable is properly ventilated.

2.—Do not separate the milk or hold cream in cow stable—have a small room tightly partitioned off in one corner—and "well ventilated" for this important operation.

3.—For the sake of sanitation for "yourself, your family and the public," wipe the udder, flanks and teats with a damp cloth, and "milk" with clean, dry hands.

State Flavor
Causes:
1.—Cream which has been held too

DIZZINESS

Caused by Blood pressure

Doctor ordered Kruschen

"Five years ago this month I had a serious attack of blood pressure, and my medical man ordered me to take Kruschen Salts daily. Evidently I am a stubborn subject, because I use every morning a small teaspoonful and a half in a glass of hot water, and this acts splendidly and keeps my head right. If I don't have the action mentioned, I feel cold, stupid and liable to fall from dizziness. Therefore I can't do without my Kruschen on any account. Some time ago I tried some other salts which were cheaper, but they pained me so much that I had to stop them. There is no pain with Kruschen. I have told hundreds of my little wonder-working bottle."—(E. C. Ferguson.)

Dizziness is a symptom of a deep-seated disorder. It is one of Nature's danger signals—her urgent warning of an impure blood-stream which, if not attended to in time, may wreck the entire health with some dangerous, indeed lifelong, disease. The six salts in Kruschen keep the blood-stream pure and vigorous by ensuring the complete elimination of poisonous waste matter from the system every day.

long before shipping "takes on" this flavor. It is objectionable in that first grade butter cannot be manufactured from this type of cream.

2.—Also, flushing separator bowl with stale or stagnant water will bring about this flavor.

Remedy:
Use only fresh, clean water to flush separator bowl. Endeavor to ship at least once each week during the summer months.

Unclean Flavors
Causes:
There are numerous reasons for this undesirable type of flavor. For instance, the usual practice is to use a cloth for washing the separator bowl, pails, etc. Now a cloth is the very worst thing that can be found for this particular operation. Use a brush instead, because a cloth soon becomes foul smelling; it acts as a collector of germs, etc., whereas a brush lasts longer, cleans out ridges and crevices better, and does not impart an unclean and undesirable odor or flavor to the surface of the utensil.

Unclean water or stale, stagnant soft water should not be used for washing dairy utensils.

Calves should not be fed from milk rooms or cellar.

pails. Also, do not keep calves, pigs or hens in the stable alongside cows or near the cream separator.

Milk from unhealthy cows, or cows suffering from digestive derangement, or garget in the udder, cow pox, etc., is usually "off" in flavor.

Many other abnormal local conditions may bring about an undesirable flavor in cream which will make the manufacture of first grade butter therefrom impossible.

1.—Separate immediately you are through milking.

2.—Cool the cream immediately separating is completed.

3.—Do not mix warm and cold cream.

4.—Keep cream can cold in a clean well-ventilated room free from odors.

Weedy Flavor
1.—Such weeds as ragweed, looks, etc., impart objectionable flavors to cream. "Leeks" must always be classified as "off grade."

2.—Cows on swampy, or low, damp pasture, frequently give milk with a bitter, pungent flavor. This is objectionable, and at the same time unfortunate, as the producer may be unable to change the pasture, and he certainly cannot change his farm, so through no fault of his, it may be necessary, due to Government Cream Grading Regulations, to place his cream in 2nd grade.

Yeasty Flavor
Causes:
1.—Unsanitary milking conditions.

2.—Storing pails, separator bowl, etc., in damp, dark, poorly-ventilated rooms or cellar.

3.—Placing the cream can in a hot room, woodshed, etc., or allowing it to stand in the summer sun. Also, keeping the can beside the stove or furnace during winter.

4.—Separating thin cream—under 35% fat.

Remedy:
Sanitary methods of production as outlined elsewhere in this circular, properly washed pails, separator, etc., and a prompt cooling of the cream to 60 degrees Fahrenheit or lower, immediately it is separated, and holding at or below this temperature, will overcome yeasty flavor.

Also, separate cream which tests over 35% fat.

Washing Dairy Utensils (Pails, Separators, Etc.) Important.

1.—Rinse all pails and dairy utensils with warm water.

2.—Wash with hot water which contains some washing soda.

3.—Thoroughly scald with boiling water, and place on their sides to dry in a clean, bright, well ventilated, dry room.

N.B.—Use a brush for washing, avoid the use of a cloth—it frequently imparts a bad flavor to the surface of the utensil. Do not dry with cloth after scalding—if properly scalded the utensil will dry quickly.

Flush separator bowl with warm water before starting to separate. Immediately skimming is completed, thoroughly clean the separator by taking the bowl apart, washing, scalding and leaving to dry until it is used again.

General Hints
1.—Wipe cows' udders and teats before milking, and milk with clean, dry hands.

2.—Feed only after milking has been completed, and the milk and cream removed from the barn.

3.—If separating is done in a well-ventilated room by itself, at one end of the stable.

4.—It is good practice to whitewash the cowstable each spring and fall.

5.—Cool the cream immediately it is separated—keep it cool in a clean room free from odors.

6.—Stir frequently, using a clean stirring rod.

7.—Cream testing 35% fat or over does not sour as quickly as thin, low testing cream, and therefore usually gives a better grade.

8.—There is no difference in the test of cream, whether it be sweet or sour.—The Cowbell.

Newspaper Advertising and the Town Merchant

Herman Roe, of The Northfield (Minn.) News, has been addressing the National Merchants' Association. At this St. Paul gathering, Mr. Roe said, among other things that one of the serious conditions affecting the fate of the small town and the individual merchant is the existence of TOO MANY WEAK AND DORMANT DEPARTMENTS in the "community" department store.

Allowing a few merchants to do all the boosting and advertising for a town while others sit back and attempt to cash in on this publicity is one example of "sponging." The work of a few brings trade into town and the shoppers are bound to spend some money with those who are simply riding along. But it is far from being public-spirited. A town will never prosper until every MERCHANT is doing his part to attract people to the town to trade and EVERY BUSINESS is working to extend the trade as far out as possible.

"One of the most successful small town merchants in America, doing half a million dollar general store business in a North Dakota town of 5,000 population, in speaking of the condition has gone so far as to predict the COMPLETE ELIMINATION OF THE INDEPENDENT RETAILER from the field of business within ten years unless something is done about it—and that something, he says, is Newspaper Advertising. Here is his indictment, also his remedy:

"HUNDREDS OF RETAILERS SIT IN THEIR STORES AND CALMLY WAIT FOR CUSTOMERS TO COME IN. THEY WILL SOON FIND THAT THERE WON'T BE EVEN ONE CUSTOMER UNLESS THEY DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT. DOZENS IN EVERY TOWN PRACTICE THAT METHOD OF OPERATING A BUSINESS. IT SIMPLY CAN'T BE DONE. YOU MUST ADVERTISE, INVITE THE CUSTOMERS TO COME IN AND BUY FROM YOU, AND THEN YOU MUST GIVE THEM SERVICE THAT WILL INDUCE THEM TO RETURN."

SCHOOLBOYS' ESSAY

ON AN EDITOR

The following is an essay written by a schoolboy in northern Ontario, which deals with the question of newspapers and their editors. This reprint, however, is with regard to editors, and this is what he says:

"I don't know how newspapers got into the world and I don't think God does, for he ain't got nothing to say about these in the Bible. I think the editor is the missing link we read of and stayed in business until after the flood and came out and wrote the whole thing up, and has been kept busy ever since. If the editor makes a mistake folks say he ought to be hung, but if the doctor makes a mistake he buries it and the people don't say nothing as they can't read Latin. When the editor makes a mistake there is a big lawsuit and swearing and a big fuss; but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral with flowers and perfect silence. A doctor can use a word a yard long without him or anyone else knowing what it means, but if the editor uses one he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for a visit but if the editor goes he gets a charge of buckshot. Any college can make doctors to order but editors have to be born—Cassius Adams."

CONDITIONS IMPROVE

Fair indications that conditions are improving throughout Canada lie in the fact that "Salada" tea sales show an increase in the past five months of over 400,000 pounds in Canada.

WINTER SHELTER

FOR FALL PIGS

(Experimental Farms Note)

The prospect of having to carry fall pigs through a long and severe winter prevents many farmers from breeding their sows for fall litters. While it must be admitted that in the prairie provinces there is the possibility of long and severe winters which may cause the fall pigs to make slow and comparatively expensive gains; nevertheless the fact remains that housing conditions on many farms are to a large extent responsible for the poor gains. The fall pigs must have dry, well bedded quarters which are free from draughts and well ventilated if they are to make the maximum use of feed consumed. It requires a little more feed to produce 100 pounds of gain on fall pigs than on spring pigs but prices for the fall pigs average sufficiently higher to render them on the average, a little more profitable than spring pigs.

Expensive and elaborate pigeries for housing fall pigs are unnecessary. Colony houses have proven very satisfactory shelters for fall pigs at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta. The 6 by 8 feet and 4 feet to the eaves gable type portable colony house has been found to be considerably better for housing fall pigs than the larger and more expensive permanent pigery. This statement assumes, of course, that the pigs in the colony house are kept dry and well bedded and that the feed trough, or self feeder is sheltered to some extent from severe winds.

The plan followed at the Lacombe Station is to place the cabins side by side and crate and bank them to the eaves with straw, leaving the fronts open and facing the south. A sheet of sacking or similar material hung over the door breaks the wind and provides suitable protection for the doorway. The feeding lot which adjoins each cabin is large enough to provide space for limited exercise and the feed trough or self feeder. The 6 by 8 feet colony house will accommodate from eight to ten fall pigs comfortably. If more than eight or ten pigs are together they often pile up during cold weather and those underneath become too warm and damp with steam; then when coming out to feed they suffer from the cold.

At the Lacombe Station the colony house has also been a successful method of housing the early spring litter. The sow farrows in the main pigery, and as soon as the youngsters are from ten days to two weeks old, if the weather is not too severe, the sow and litter are moved outside to one of the cabins above mentioned where they may take exercise outside.

A circular giving detailed plans and specifications for the construction of a cheap portable colony house can be secured free of charge from your nearest Experimental Station or from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont.

RULES ARE NOW READY FOR WORLD'S GRAIN EXHIBITION

Rules and regulations, governing entries in the competitive classes of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held in Regina, July 25th to August 6th, 1932, have now been prepared and are available upon application from the office of the Secretary, Imperial Bank Building, Regina, Canada.

The World's Grain Exhibition is open to world-wide competition and any grower in any part of the world may be an exhibitor. The regulations now issued point out that with regard to type and quality exhibits in each class should consist of seed of a type and quality capable of reproducing a product of the most desirable character for the purpose intended. "General quality and appearance alone is not sufficient" to quote the rules. "Exhibitors should keep in mind the fact that breeding will be taken into consideration."

The rules also state that each exhibitor will be allowed to make entry in as many classes as he may desire, but not more than one entry may be made in any one class. Entries may be taken from any year's crop, there being no restrictions respecting the year in which the exhibit is grown. Applications for entry must be made on forms provided for this purpose and mailed to the Secretary, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, Regina, Canada.

Stop Us! if you have heard this one

"My Dear, I simply dread this daily shopping!" How many times have you heard that story? More than once, we'll bet a hat. And if you ask the woman who "dreads shopping" just why she does so, you'll usually hear something like this:

"It takes so much time! I start out and look and look and look—and by the time I've found what I want I'm dead on my feet. All in, my dear. I mean I actually am!"

You can do a friend like that a real service. Ask her if she reads the advertisements. Usually she'll look surprised and say, "Not very often. What has that to do with it?"

Tell her how you have your mind all made up before you hang the market basket over your arm—how you're able to save steps, budget your expenditures neatly, get what you want—and all with a minimum of time and effort. Simply because you have the news of the shopping world at your finger-tips all the time by reading the advertisements every issue.

Four Doses Relieved Bad Attack of Cholera

Mr. W. J. Cooper, Maughan, Alta., writes:—"A year ago last spring I arrived in Canada with my family, and one of my boys, aged six, was suffering very much with cholera. When we arrived I had a few hours to wait, and told one of the attendants at the station about it, and he asked me if I had ever tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I had never heard of it in England, so he told me I could get it in Winnipeg. I am pleased to say I had only to give the child four doses and he got well and was quite cheerful by the next morning."

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REPORT

The following is a weekly report from the Edmonton Stock Yards, prepared by a Times representative, for the week ending September 9th:

Receipts: Cattle, 695; calves, 249; hogs, 1392; sheep, 637.
 The market so far this week has been decidedly dull and inactive. Buyers are indifferent in their attitude and do not need many cattle to fill their wants, particularly of heavier kinds of butchers. Prices on the whole are showing a weaker tone, with last week's decline and especially on steers and cows.

Bulk of the good butcher steers are quoted at $5.00 to $5.25, with common to medium kinds at $3.50 to $4.50. Bulk of the good butcher heifers at $5.00 to $5.50, choice light kinds might bring up to $6.00, common to medium $3.50 to $4.50. The general run of butcher cows are selling at $4.00 to $4.25 for the good ones, with common to medium going at $3.50 to $3.75. Canners and cutters are selling at $1.00 to $2.00; bulls at $2.50 to $3.00. Stockers of all kinds and particularly the lighter end, are still moving fairly readily at about steady and unchanged values.

Stockers steers and heifers selling generally at $3.50 to $4.50, with odd really good kinds up to $5.00, stockers cows at $2.50 to $3.75.

So far this week hog receipts have been light but prices are keeping fairly steady with last week's close. Prices on the few head sold this week were on a basis of $10.35 for hams, $10.85 for select and $10.00 for butchers, fed and watered. Cuts on the offgrades remain unchanged and as follows: Heavies $1.50, extra heavies $3.00, No. 1 sows $3.50, all other sows $4.50 and rough hogs $5.50.

In Great Britain there are some two million men out of work and distress and poverty abound in many quarters, and yet they wasted $1,440,000,000 on strong drink in 1929, five times the amount of unemployment insurance.

During the war Lloyd George suggested buying up the breweries and ridding the country of the liquor traffic. Many now see their mistake.

Is the assertion so generally made all too true, that our present liquor system is fast putting the Dominion among the most alcoholized countries in the world?
 Kipling, who has strikingly upheld prohibition, did not always do so. He had advocated there was no harm in beer taken in moderation. But having on an occasion noted some of the evil effects on youth, he recanted his opinion, giving as his reason that his own desire for beer helped to promote the injury to others.
